Description
This is a photograph of three worshipers behind a barbed wire barrier. E. Clifton Daniel wrote: "Here you see a man on his knees behind the barbed wire on the site of Pilate's Palace. The site is now used a [sic] police barracks, hence the barbed wire. Beyond the kneeling man and the standing man is a Roman Catholic monk, also kneeling." This photograph was taken through the barbed wire barrier and is numbered "2." It is part of a series of ten photographs that record Daniel's experience in Jerusalem and is part of a group of photographs originally sent by E. Clifton Daniel, Jr. to his parents.
